Before we go you will have to provide a separate cheque in the sum of £160 (per person) as a share of the damage and security deposit. We would normally expect that the charter company will not find fault with our care of their yacht and therefore our damage and security deposit, which we have to actually pay to them, will be returned to us in full. We will not present the cheque for your share of this, to our bank, unless we were unfortunate enough to have a claim lodged against us. In which case the actual damage charged would be shared equally amongst the crew.
